

I feel that when a radio or TV station calls me, that IS a form of solicitation. They are seeking my investment of time in listening to their station or channel. In addition, they are selling my investment in time to advertisers in the form of market share ratings.

I resent the exemption given to radio and TV stations from the do not call rules. They are wasting my family time and invading my privacy and I do not want to be called by them.

Thank you for reconsidering this exemption. They should not be exempt.

Nancy Tecumseh

Albuquerque, NM